

A Tail to Remember

Contributed by The RedHead

This is a pictorial tail of the Adventures of Poindexter the Ponderous Possum. You see, Jase was driving a U-Haul truck, which was pulling a car dolly, from Louisiana to Virginia. Somewhere in Tennessee, along I-81, he struck a hapless opossum. Enter our tragic hero, Poindexter. I was driving with my mother, a day behind Jase. Lo and behold, we find Poindexter hanging from an I-81 sign, woefully begging for a ride. We picked him up, bandaged him, and brought him along for a little reunion with Jase...

I confess that Poindexter is actually a stuffed animal we spotted at a Cracker Barrel. We had great fun staging the photos. We found a U-Haul trailer in a motel parking lot off the interstate. We also made a fun pit stop at Valley Towing , just to add interest to our photo shoot. That evening, there had been a Tow Parade in Harrisonburg. The truck Poindexter is hanging all over was still warm! When we arrived at the farm, we hung Poindexter by is tail inside the screen door, knocked, and ran. You should have seen the face on Jase! Worthy of an American Express commercial...PRICELESS!
